OWL TEA HOUSE

NOVELTIES OF THE SEASON.

WILL TAKE A HOLIDAY.

E. G. Brehm, Who Has Lived on Camas Prairie for Past 20 Years, Will Spend Winter in Portland.

E. G. Brehm, who has a ranch five miles southeast from Alba in Camas Prairie, is in town. Mr. Brehm will leave today or tomorrow for Portland. He will secure a house and with his family will spend the winter in Portland. Twenty years ago Mr. Brehm came out from Kansas. As he had no capital to buy land, he looked around to find untaken government land. He took up a homestead near the Dixie ranch in Camas Prairie. His ranch has increased from his original homestead to over a thousand acres. As neighboring homesteaders grew restless or discouraged he bought them out usually paying about $400 for a quarter section. He has been in the dairy business for past 12 or 15 years, milking about 25 cows. For the past six years the French restaurant has taken all his output of butter, paying 25 cents a pound the year around. His average output of butter is about 75 pounds a week. In addition to his dairy cattle he raises cattle for beef.

He raises 40 acres of timothy for the dairy cattle and the stock cattle are pastured throughout the summer and in the winter they are driven to the vicinity of Pendleton to feed on the stubble fields and straw stacks. He has over a hundred head now out in the Middle Cold Springs canyon. "Yes, old Umatilla is all right," said Mr. Brehm. "I have hired a man to run my place this winter while my wife and myself go down to Portland and take a few months' rest. I came here with nothing and now I own a thousand acres of rich land and a good herd of cattle and have prospered. In fact, any man who is willing to work and will not get cold feet and want to quit will make it in Umatilla. We have earned a holiday and we are going to have it and see a little of what is going on."

RESIGNED.

Nothing in the Office of Deputy Game Warden.

O. F. Steele has found the office of deputy game warden in Eastern Oregon where conviction of offenders is almost as scarce as hen's molars, too strenuous and has resigned. Mr. Steele is in Pendleton today from his ranch at Nolia.

"I was obliged to give up the deputyship," said Steele, "on account of my private affairs. The compensation is too small for one to neglect his other duties to attend to the game business."

Water Is Scarce.

Owing to the absence of rain and snow on the Blue mountains the past three months, water is very low in all the streams, and the O. R. & N. experiences great difficulty in keeping a supply at the different tanks for the use of locomotives. The tanks at Huron, Kameia and Meacham have only part of a supply, while the temporary tank four miles east of North Fork is yet maintained. Ordinarily this tank is abandoned in October, but is greatly needed this season, and will probably remain in service all winter.

Pink Blanks Abolished.

In order to rush important business by telegraph, the O. R. & N. system has long used a form of pink telegraphic order blanks, which were always entitled to precedence over all other colors of blanks. Owing to the indiscriminate use of the pink blank in unimportant business, the telegraph department has abolished that form of blank altogether, except in the head offices in Chicago, New York and Portland. Local offices have been requested to send in their supply of pink blanks, and this terror to operators has disappeared.

Snowballing at the Depot.

A volley of snowballs surprised a group of sightseers at the O. R. & N. depot this morning. As not a flake of snow has fallen this winter they were naturally surprised. The explanation was at hand. On a side-track stood a freight train that had just come in from the east. Six inches of snow lay on the roofs of the box cars. It had evidently passed through a snowstorm in coming over the mountains.

Annual Election Tonight.

The annual election of the local Retail Clerks' Union will be held tonight. The present officers are: President, F. J. Macy; first vice president, George Ferguson; second vice president, Carl Colley; corresponding secretary, D. V. Bailey; treasurer, Norville Jones; guide, J. W. Olsen.

To Observe the Holidays.

The merchants will keep their stores closed on the Monday following Christmas and the Monday following New Years day.

THE BIGNEY SISTERS

QUARTET OF DEVOTED RELIGIOUS WORKERS.

These Sisters Have Devoted an Aggregate of Forty-eight Years to Salvation Army Work — Captain Henrietta Bigney Was for a Time Stationed at Pendleton and All Are Known in the Northwest—Are Natives of Pasadena, Cal.

Engaged in Salvation Army work at the present time are four sisters, Ensigns Henrietta and Maud Bigney, Mrs. Adjutant Mabel Bigney Hawkes and Lieutenant Minnie Bigney. Three of the sisters are at present working in the Northwest division, and all are native Californians.

The Oregon Daily Journal prints the following account of the four sisters, which is of local interest owing to the fact that Ensign Henrietta Bigney was stationed here a few weeks ago:

In the Salvation Army in this city are two of four sisters who have devoted their lives to the work of rescuing the fallen and assisting the needy. The combined work of the four young women is 48 years of service as officers in the army.

Ensign Maud Bigney, one of the sisters, is in charge of Corps No. 1, 265 Davis street, this city. Next July 4 she will have been an officer in the army 16 years.

Lieutenant Minnie Rogers Bigney is stationed at the same post and works under the direction of the ensign. She has been in the service eight years.

Captain Henrietta Bigney is in charge of the Salvation Army camps at Hoquiam and Aberdeen, Wash., and has also seen eight years of service.

Mrs. Adjutant Mabel Hawkes is stationed at St. Louis, where she is junior staff secretary. In Portland before her marriage she was known as Staff Captain Bigney in charge of Corps No. 4.

The sisters were born and raised at Pasadena, Cal., where they joined the army. All have served in the ranks, though they soon received promotion. "We, especially the two of us who have been in the army 16 years, have seen it grow from an insignificant, despised and persecuted band of so-called fanatics, into what it is today," said Ensign Bigney. "We have together served 48 years, and they have not all been years of undisturbed endeavor."

"It was in 1889, I think, that we had our severest trials. I was stationed in San Francisco in Tar flat, in the old White Wing theater. Few, if any, would believe the story of the hardships we endured there."

"We actually had to carry clubs to protect ourselves. Mobs attacked and jeered us. We dared not kneel on the streets, for if we knelt the crowd closed in upon us. So we remained standing to pray. When we marched in the streets, it was always the bravest soldiers who took the last positions. Always when we returned those in the rear of the procession were bleeding and battered as the result of the attacks from the mob."

"They set fire to my clothes and to those of the other women. When we left the streets we had to spend an hour or so washing away the eggs and blood with which we were bespattered. They threw decayed vegetables and everything else they could find, at us."

"I was thrown into jail at San Diego and at Los Angeles for preaching on the streets. Once in San Francisco when we were singing, one of the mob slipped a piece of wire around my feet and tried to trip me up. They did everything that cruel and diabolical ingenuity could suggest."

"But those times are long gone. No one molests us now, and we preach and pray wherever we will. Of course, the work is not the sort that everybody would like. But we like it, and no one outside the army has an idea of the amount of good it does."

Home Again.

Norbourne Berkeley has just returned from several months traveling in the East and South. When he left Washington City last Sunday the chief industry was shoveling snow off the walks. He has been East in the interests of his mining property at Sumpter. While gone he visited Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and several Eastern states.

Extra Messenger Boys.

To handle the extra work during the Christmas season, Mr. Hatt, manager of the A. D. T., has put on extra messengers. The company this year is making a specialty of delivering Christmas gifts, calling at the residences for them, and delivering them to those for whom they are intended.

Conductor Dunn on Vacation. Conductor William Dunn, of the west end run of the O. R. & N., is taking a few weeks' vacation and passed through last evening on No. 2, accompanied by his family, en route to Wyoming, where he will enjoy an extensive hunt in the mountains. Extra Conductor Frank Wieden is on his run.

School Christmas Tree. The teachers at the Field primary entertained this afternoon. A Christmas tree and a Santa Claus were provided for the children. The teachers are Miss Rozene Epple, Miss Pearl Willis and Miss Elizabeth Parrot.

Christmas Holly. Forshaw, the florist, has just received a shipment of well berried Christmas holly. Order by telephone.
